

“Basically, I no longer work for anything but the sensation I have while working.”
– Albert Giacometti

Switzerland is one of the richest countries in the world by per capita gross domestic product. Zürich and Geneva have respectively been ranked as having the first and second highest quality of life in the world.

Switzerland is bordered by Germany to the north, France to the west, Italy to the south and Austria and Liechtenstein to the east. The country has a long history of neutrality — it has not been at war since 1815 — and hosts many international organizations, including the Red Cross, the World Trade Organization and one of the UN’s two European offices; however, it is not a member of the European Union.

Switzerland is multilingual and has four national languages: German, French, Italian and Romansh.
